Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Schedule for Sunday, Monday

by Tim King

Greenbelt's beloved Labor Day Festival, running Friday, August 30 through Monday, September 2, offers a plethora of activities for every age and interest. Carnival rides, bingo, fair food, sporting events, music performances, the big parade and many chances to connect with your community and neighbors are all about to begin. This article focuses on getting the most out of Sunday and Monday offerings at the summer-ending Festival.

Who Was Here Before Greenbelt?

by Melanie Iversen

Greenbelt does a good job of keeping its history alive. A stroll through the halls of the Community Center, with its photos of construction of buildings and early residents, always gives me pause. The design and development of this town was unique and timeless. Building a community in this way created connection during a time that was very disjointed and challenging.

Greenbelt continues to thrive and grow, but what about those who are here in spirit: the folks who rest in the cemeteries? How do we keep that part of history going strong as well? Greenbelt has at least three cemeteries that have stood quietly by holding stories, many of which have been forgotten.

A State Heritage Area grant of $35,000 has been awarded to the city through the planning department for the purpose of bringing back stories and pieces of history long forgotten. The funds will be used to create a master plan that will focus on protecting and preserving these cemeteries. We know when Greenbelt was founded, but who was here before us? Who rests in these graveyards? Enslaved people? Families and people who called these acres home before the plan for the city was even imagined?

The hope is that, with the help of cemetery historians, genealogists and others, we can find some lost graves, clean up some stones that have been neglected

Four Greenbelters Tackle Paris To Mont St. Michel Bike Ride

by the Meetres and the Bonnells

From mid-May to early June, two News Review couples, Jerry and Letty Bonnell and Rick and Cathie Meetre, rode rented e-bikes from Paris to Mont St. Michel along a French national cycle trail called the Véloscénie – a distance of about 400 km (250 miles). With much of the mileage on rail trails or separated bike lanes, the experience was (mostly) idyllic and traffic-free. Paris itself has become excellent riding territory, with many cycle lanes and paths. Twenty-five years ago, only the suicidal would have contemplated cycling there, but now it isn't foolhardy at all.

For the first wet couple of days, good rain gear protected the travelers on the trail, though a thorough coating of French mud was unavoidable. After that the weather was cool but sunny – perfect for cycling.

An eclectic mix of lodgings sheltered them overnight and home cooking interspersed with restaurants fueled their daily 60-kilometer rides – with a rest day after each two or three riding days.

Wayside Treasures

Letty Bonnell is an art historian and gleefully provided insights into the structures and artwork encountered on the trip.

Letters to the Editor

Problem Resolved

As many in our community know, recently the Board of the New Deal Café signed a food and beverage contract with a new vendor. The contract was to start on Friday, November 1. Therefore the current vendor, Greenbelt Consumer Cooperative (the Co-op) would need to close on October 31 to proceed with moving out.

However, we soon realized that there are events scheduled for that weekend involving Halloween that would have to be canceled.

So we approached the Co-op in the hope some accommodation could be made for moving out earlier, and I'm happy to say they agreed. They will now close operations and begin moving out as of 4 p.m., Sunday, October 27. This will allow our new vendor time to set up his operations in time for Halloween shenanigans.

On behalf of the Board of the New Deal Café, we would like to thank manager Dan Gillotte and Co-op Board president Bill Jones for their understanding and flexibility. A tough decision was made to change vendors, yet they did not let that make them hold fast to the original agreement.

For that, we are grateful and feel that the community should know.

Find More Peace Through Meditation

A huge thank you to all who participated in the summer meditation series, to the Mishkan Torah Sisterhood for sponsoring it again and for the Greenbelt News Review for posting information about it weekly. It has been wonderful to hear of the great interest in meditation. More classes will be offered starting in October. Email me for more information at katrinaboverman@yahoo.com.

Who Shall Investigate?

My compliments to the author of the cat-lady story, a trenchant piece of political analysis (How Does Old Greenbelt Figure in the Childless Cat Lady Stakes? Aug. 22). But who, pray tell, is Felinella Contravance? Not since Joe Klein denied authorship of Primary Colors has there been such a whodunit in the publishing realm, but I have faith that the investigative reporters at the News Review will get to the bottom of it!

Between the Temples

Ben (Jason Schwartzman) is a 40-something cantor losing his voice and possibly his faith. Struggling to meet the expectations of his rabbi, congregation and not one but two Jewish mothers (Caroline Aaron and Dolly De Leon), Ben finds his world turned upside down when his grade school music teacher re-enters his life as an adult bat mitzvah student. This warm and anxious comedy from prolific writer/director Nathan Silver explores the complexities of belief, connection and what it means to be a real mensch.

Good One

In India Donaldson's insightful, piercing debut, 17-year-old Sam (Lily Collias) embarks on a three-day backpacking trip in the Catskills with her dad, Chris (James Le Gros) and his oldest friend, Matt (Danny McCarthy). As the two men quickly settle into a gently quarrelsome brotherly dynamic, airing long-held grievances, Sam, wise beyond her years, attempts to mediate. But when lines are crossed and Sam's trust is betrayed, tensions reach a fever pitch, as Sam struggles with her dad's emotional limitations and experiences the universal moment when the parental bond is tested. Selected in both Sundance and Cannes' Directors' Fortnight, Good One is an emotionally expansive work that probes the limits of familial trust, understanding and ultimately, forgiveness.

Wonder Park

Buckle up for an epic adventure in this animated feature, where anything is possible. A young girl named June with a big imagination makes an incredible discovery – the amusement park of her dreams has come to life. Filled with the world's wildest rides and operated by fun-loving animals, the excitement never ends. But when trouble hits, June and her misfit team of furry friends begin an unforgettable journey to save the park.

Born Yesterday

Brassy blonde moll Billie Dawn (Judy Holliday) hits Washington, D.C., with her unscrupulous millionaire sugar daddy, Harry Brock (Broderick Crawford), and his sleazy lawyer, Jim Devery (Howard St. John), who has been pressuring Harry to marry Billie by pointing out that a wife cannot be forced to testify against her husband. In an effort to make Billie more socially acceptable, Harry hires journalist Paul Verrall (William Holden) to smarten her up – and sparks soon fly between the pair.

Rude Mechanicals: The School for Scandal

The School for Scandal, an 18th century comedy by Richard Sheridan, is the latest offering from the Rude Mechanicals and opened at the Greenbelt Arts Center on Friday, August 23. Set in the 1980s, the eponymous group of gossips at the School for Scandal Morning Show dish the dirt on various society figures. From the ambitiously constructed set to live video segments, The Rude Mechanicals push artistic and technical boundaries in this tribute to ‘80s television. Says director Alan Duda, “If you remember the ‘80s, you’ll like this show!” The Rude Mechanicals remain dedicated to the safety of their troupe and patrons. All Rudes productions supplement the theater’s air circulation with additional filters to reduce airborne contaminants.

The Rude Mechanicals are a resident company at the Greenbelt Arts Center and have been associated with the Greenbelt community since the troupe’s inception 25 years ago. See the review and ad on page 8 for show times and more information.

Greenbelt Museum Labor Day Events

On Saturday, August 31 at 9 a.m., the Greenbelt Museum will be the starting point for a Bricks and Blocks Walking Tour. This tour will highlight historic Greenbelt’s domestic architecture, the “brick and block” homes that make up the majority of the original planned community. The guide will show the walkers how to “read” the brick and block homes. The Bricks and Blocks tour leaves from the Greenbelt Museum at 10-B Crescent Road and takes approximately two hours, including the Museum’s orientation film. Additionally, guests will have the opportunity to visit the interior of the Museum’s historic home after the walking tour. Pre-registration is required via Eventbrite. Dress for walking outdoors. Space is limited to 12 participants. The tour will not be conducted in thunderstorms or if the temperature is above 95 degrees. The Retro Town Fair is on Sunday, September 1, and is much like the event early Greenbelters enjoyed, starting in 1939. Ribbons will be awarded for the best entries in a number of categories including flowers, vegetables, baked goods, canned goods and needlework/sewing. Entries will be accepted from 10 to 11:30 a.m. and the winners displayed from 1 to 4 p.m. Entry forms are available on the Museum website (greenbeltmuseum.org), at the Co-op Supermarket and at the event registration table. CARES Needs Fund Donations

For the past three years, Greenbelt CARES has used federal American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) money to help prevent evictions brought on by Covid. The ARPA money ran out in October. Once again, it is up to Greenbelt residents to help our neighbors. Although evictions have decreased since the pandemic, families are still facing eviction because of increases in rent, illness, death of a family member or a financial crisis such as expensive medical care or car repairs. A recent poll shows that many persons do not have financial stability due to a lack of job security, no health insurance and decreased ability to save for a financial crisis. The Greenbelt Emergency Assistance Fund continues to be that safety net for Greenbelters in a financial crisis whatever the reason. Those who are able can help by donating to the fund. Make checks out to Greenbelt CARES, write Emergency Assistance Fund in the memo space and mail to Greenbelt CARES, 25 Crescent Road, Greenbelt, MD 20770 (or place in the secure drop box at that address). Or, go to GreenbeltMD.gov, click Pay Online at the top of the page and choose Charitable Donations. Complete the form, indicating the donation is for the Emergency Assistance Fund, and click submit; the payment page then will come up with a form to enter credit card or PayPal information.

Obituaries

Jeffery Patterson

Jeffery Lawrence Patterson, of 13 Hillside Road, died Sunday, August 11, 2024. He had been ill with breathing problems and had recently been hospitalized. Jeffery was born May 24, 1964, in Cheverly to Carol Ann and Donald Patterson.

He lived for a time in Greenbelt when he was growing up and attended Eleanor Roosevelt High School. He next lived in Honolulu, Hawaii, later moving back to Greenbelt.

Jeffery had artistic talent and started drawing as a child. As an adult, he worked as a roofer for some years.

Jeffery is survived by his mother Carol Ann Patterson, sister Debbie Huser, daughter Danielle Patterson and three grandchildren. He was predeceased by his father Donald Patterson and his brother Daniel Patterson, who is survived by his wife Angie Patterson of Delaware.

Bonnie Lou Shields

Bonnie Lou Shields

Bonnie Lou (McCaw) Shields died on March 11, 2024, just 100 days following the death of her beloved husband, Lee Barron Shields. They were residents of Greenbelt since 1959.

Originally from New York, she grew up in Berwyn Heights and was a graduate of Northwestern High School and the University of Maryland.

Bonnie leaves a legacy as a life-long teacher, which was her favorite thing to do. She taught physical education for over 35 years and was a Sunday school teacher for nearly as long. She also taught swimming lessons for many years. She was an avid reader of books and magazines.

While perhaps not classified as an artist, her creative ability and artistic prowess was always on display in bulletin boards, hand-made cards, Christmas ornaments, costumes and other sewing/knitting/quilting projects, all done to enrich the lives of others.

Bonnie loved to sightsee and travel. She never met a museum she didn't like. Her adventures took her through all 50 states, every province of Canada and several trips through Mexico. She added many more locations around the globe, even if only from the confines of a National Geographic lecture hall or inside her collection of magazines.

In her last great act of charity, she donated her earthly remains to the Maryland Anatomy Board.

She is survived by her sister, Darlene Keane; three children, Kevin, Jonathan and Leerin; seven grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren, with countless other "children" claimed through years of service for various pools, the Prince George's County School System, St. John's Lutheran Church, Greenbelt, friends, neighbors and a plethora of acquaintances made over her 86 years on earth. She was known affectionately as Aunt (or Grandma) Bonnie to thousands.

A memorial service will be held at St. John's Lutheran Church in Riverdale on Friday, September 13 at 11 a.m. It will also be viewable through the following link: <https://youtube.com/live/ANPv5pW6nyA?feature=share>.

In Memoriam Aphrodite Matsakis

I was a young social worker, new to the mental health field, when the Health Department offered training on veterans and post-traumatic stress disorder. The presenter was a young, vibrant, inspiring, knowledgeable, skillful therapist who gave one of the best presentations I have ever attended. I remember being quite energized and informed thanks to her wonderful presentation and it helped direct much of my work over the following decades. Her name was Aphrodite Matsakis, and the training has stuck with me ever since.

Fast forward to decades later when I was working out at the GAFC gym. I got to know Aphrodite while riding the bikes. Somehow we spoke our hellos and would chat. Come to think of it, it all started when she wore wonderful purple clothes, had a purple bag and I complimented her on the color. Little did I know that I had crossed paths with her many decades before and at some point realized she was "That Woman" who had had so much influence on me.

I am grateful that I realized who she was and that I was able to tell her about the impact her presence and training had had on my life. She was quite humble, yet appreciative, and it wasn't until after I read her obituary in the News Review that I realized she had written many books, given many other presentations and had quite a life.

I had no idea she had been sick and died; however, I had wondered about her since I hadn't seen her in ages. I am grateful for her family letting our community know about her life and death, grateful to the city for our wonderful Fitness Center and grateful to the News Review for the special attention they give in recognizing fellow Greenbelters.

Katrina Boverman

Our condolences to the family and many friends of Bonnie Lou Shields who died on March 11. She and her husband Lee had been residents of Greenbelt since 1959. Bonnie was known for her many creative abilities and love of travel.

Our sympathies to the family and friends of Jeffery Patterson who died on August 11. He grew up in Greenbelt and returned as an adult.

Best wishes to Greenbelt's students and teachers for a successful new school year.

even recipes, he said. He plans to offer more than lunch and dinner, to continue smoothies, to have breakfast sandwiches and platters, a lunch menu, dinner menu and a late night menu.

Asked the typical cost of a meal, Hilliard suggested $12 to $15 but he also pointed to his 32-ounce bowl of lamb, crab and shrimp salad that costs $30. He plans to offer burgers and chicken sandwiches among other dishes and says the vegan options will be “absolutely amazing.”

Hilliard says there will be painting, wallpaper and new furniture to add to the cozy, warm atmosphere. Asked who will pay for new furniture and decor, Hilliard said he will.

One change will be table service, which Hilliard believes will make dining at the New Deal more of an experience. Hilliard was asked how he plans to balance table service and the community living room vibe that the community may not want to lose. He responded that he believes the menu they’ll create and the food will be so good that they may have to sell tickets for shows. He imagined popularity such that even on a night without a band, patrons will wait 20-30 minutes for a table at 8 or 9 p.m. He also mentioned that patrons who come to hear bands and not buy food mean the Café is missing out on money, and suggested it may be necessary to sell tickets for bands. He was asked to consider if they’ll be able to accommodate folks who just want to listen to music and stand rather than eat. He replied that if it gets to a point where they have to charge to make money then he’s open to that. Hilliard said he would also like to be able to pay musicians (currently they receive tips).

The New Deal will be Hilliard’s third restaurant but when he was asked about his divided attention, he assured the board and guests that though he’ll be maintaining his other locations he has staff and a general manager for them, so he will be able to be present at the New Deal. He’ll be bringing two chefs and a manager with him and plans to talk with current employees who may wish to stay. Hilliard also said he won’t be using the kitchen to do catering unless it’s catering for the New Deal location.

“I’m very energetic and fun,” said Hilliard, who used to put on costumed children’s parties. He said he learned to play the keyboard by ear and played for the choir when he was at Largo High School. Hilliard’s father was a pastor of a church, where Hilliard, who also plays the organ, used to play. For six months he toured with Montel Jordan and went on to work with other artists. Later, Hilliard began a career in education and became the behavior intervention director for D.C. public schools. He got into kale as part of a weight loss initiative. After one of the principals he worked with asked him to create kale for the staff during a special event, she told him he needed to do it fulltime. That was in October 2014 and he gave his two weeks’ notice and began creating flavored kale from his condo. Ten years later Hilliard is ready to open his third location with the New Deal Café. A soft opening is planned on or about November 1.

County School System Achieves “Financial Close” on Blueprint II

Prince George’s County Public Schools (PGCPS) along with its selected partner, Progressive Education Partners (PEP), has reached financial close on the PGCPS Blueprint Schools Phase II Project.

The Phase II Project includes the construction of eight new school facilities – six elementary schools and two PK-8 academies. The new schools include Springhill Lake Elementary School, for which a new building will be constructed on its current site. PEP will be responsible for maintenance and rehabilitation for each school throughout the 30-year operating term.

“Blueprint Schools Phase II is an unprecedented demonstration of true collaboration across all levels of government: the Board of Education, County, County Council and the state legislature,” said Superintendent Millard House II. “Once again, PGCPS is at the forefront of utilizing this innovative alternative delivery approach to deliver much-needed schools our students deserve, as quickly as possible.”

Highlights of Phase II include pre-kindergarten classrooms in all schools, and all eight schools will be delivered as “net zero schools,” underlining a commitment to sustainability and their Climate Change Action Plan, say PGCPS representatives.

“Phase II of the Blueprint Schools construction represents a major advancement in our ongoing efforts to provide world-class educational facilities for Prince George’s County students,” said Prince George’s County Executive Angela Alsobrooks. “This innovative model not only accelerates the construction of modern, state-of-the-art schools but also does so in a fiscally responsible manner, maximizing the benefits of public-private partnerships. By prioritizing efficiency and collaboration, we are creating learning environments that empower our children to thrive, ensuring a brighter future for our entire community.”

Prince George’s County Council Chair Jolene Ivey praised the project as a collective achievement. “This collaborative effort to reach this milestone reflects our dedication to providing top-notch, innovative learning environments that inspire and empower students,” Ivey said. “It’s a win for everyone and will have a transformative impact on the county for generations to come.”

The project will be financed through both public and private sources. Public funding will account for $228 million during construction while the long-term financing includes $650 million in taxable municipal bonds. Private capital will be repaid over the concession in the form of Availability Payments.

PEP will now begin the design-build phase of the project, with construction expected to begin in September and be completed in 2028 with three delivery dates: summer 2026, summer 2027 and summer 2028 – unlike Phase I where all six schools were delivered in one school year. Springhill Lake Elementary’s new building is expected to be complete in 2028, with the school using the current Dora Kennedy French Immersion building as a swing space from 2026 to 2028 during its construction.

“Over the next four years, the second phase of Blueprint Schools will create more than 8,000 seats in eight schools across the county,” said Prince George’s County Board of Education Chair Lolita E. Walker. “These new buildings are critical, and will replace and/or right-size 14 schools as we continue to modernize our facilities, the second-oldest in the state of Maryland. Ensuring this plan is fully funded is one of our top priorities and is integral to the success of our scholars.”

Maryland State Delegate Nicole Williams, chair of the Prince George’s County delegation, described the beginning of Phase II as a continuation of the collaboration between the state, county executive, county council and PGCPS to modernize school infrastructure and provide children with the high quality education they deserve.

Delegate Ben Barnes also emphasized the importance of modernizing school facilities, highlighting the strong partnership between the county executive and the state. “We are thrilled that our collaboration will deliver eight new schools in Prince George’s County,” Barnes said.

School for Scandal at GAC Brings Us Back to the 1980s

by Carol Griffith

From left, Sarah Pfanz as Lady Sneerwell, Will Robey-Lambert as Joseph Surface, Penny Martin as Mr. Crabtree, Lindsay Warrick as Maria, Valerie Mikles as Sir Benjamin Backbite and Liana Olear as Mrs. Candour enjoy a good scandal in 1980s Manhattan in School for Scandal, now playing at Greenbelt Arts Center.

A play written in Britain in the 1770s updated to a 1980s Manhattan setting? Only the Rude Mechanicals, the resident theater troupe at Greenbelt Arts Center, could pull off such a production so successfully. It’s great entertainment with witty repartee and comedy, so get a mullet haircut or legwarmers and travel back in time for an evening of laughs. The story involves two brothers who are complete opposites in character. One, described as “a man of sentiment,” is highly regarded for his kind nature; the other wastes his share of the money their rich uncle sends the brothers on wild living. When the uncle returns to New York from India to check on his nephews, he devises a clever way to test the character of each. Meanwhile, the brothers are involved with the same heiress but for different reasons. There are love triangles, forged love letters and secret meetings, all aided by the comic

School for Scandal, a group of five characters who interfere in the action and, as a portent of television to come, create a television show around their gossip and antics. A highlight of the play is the video production of the Rude Mechanicals called RMTV, a takeoff on the new MTV of the 1980s that plays on a futuristic “television” onstage. RMTV even plays some music videos sure to bring back the 1980s. Fun costumes, wigs and sets round out a great production that’s appropriate for all audiences. School for Scandal will play at the Greenbelt Arts Center, located at 124 Centerway, on Fridays and Saturdays, August 30 and 31 and September 6 and 7 at 8 p.m., with a matinee on Sunday, September 1 at 2 p.m. There is a Pay-What-You-Will show on Wednesday, August 28 at 8 p.m. See greenbeltartscenter.org for tickets and information.

Churches and cathedrals included everything from monster Gothic masterpieces to Art Deco from the 1930s. Though Chartres and Mont St. Michel were obvious standouts, smaller, less well-known edifices encountered by chance in villages along the way offered magically painted ceilings and vivid stained glass as well as inspired stone exteriors, wall paintings or tile work. Notre Dame, the ride’s starting point, is not yet reopened after the fire of 2021, but already looks magnificent as it stands out from the scaffolding that remains. Many towns had markets that were themselves as much masterpieces as the churches they often surrounded. Fish, cheese and vegetables carefully arranged were a feast for the eyes. A stall might sport a single type of mushroom, or only strawberries. One was entirely nuts (in a manner of speaking) – Brazil, almonds, peanuts, walnuts and others more exotic. Early morning trips to bakeries found by following the sniffed scent of new bread yielded croissants, pain au chocolat and chaussons de pommes still warm from the oven. Nobody lost weight on this trip. Mont St. Michel It’s a tourist trap – there’s no doubt about that. Even in early June, the causeway was busy with walkers and cyclists, and bus after loaded bus disgorged passengers on the flat area in front of the mount. But despite being so busy, it was still worth the trip. The island is like a volcano-shaped layer cake. The bottom layer is secular and the top layer is the abbey – with a clear demarcation between them. The town below the abbey is a welter of sandwich shops, souvenir shops and tackiness, though off the main trail there are tantalizing glimpses of a less-frenzied existence. The smaller lanes in the town are peaceful with stone cottages overlooking the bay. The views from the abbey ramparts are spectacular, and the interior is massive and striking. Pillars four feet in diameter and spaced only a handful of feet apart hold up the massive stone structure towering above. Chapel succeeds chapel as the tourist follows the route down from the top. But accessibility is not a priority and many older visitors were visibly struggling with the steep steps and long climbs. In high summer, a son et lumière program bathes the interior in colored light and plays music throughout the complex of arched and vaulted chambers. Quite what the monks would have made of that, nobody knows. Parting of the Ways With Mont St. Michel achieved, the two couples parted company for the next phase of their respective journeys. The Bonnells headed by train for Monet’s two painting passions – the cathedral in Rouen and his water lily garden in Giverny – while the Meetres stuck to their bikes and set off for St. Malo and the U.K.’s Bailiwick of Guernsey – an island off the coast of France. and discover people and families we never knew about.

Megan Searing Young, director of the Greenbelt Museum, was a guide in my effort to research this amazing idea. The potential to unlock more history and build more community is exciting.

Curious about these graveyards? In my research, I came across some sources that offer a mix of history and pictures. These include the book Greenbelt: History of a New Town, 1937-1987, edited by Mary Lou Williamson. In Prologue: Before Greenbelt, Alan Virta, chairman of the Prince George's County Historic Preservation Commission from 1982 to 1986 and Greenbelt resident, tells of the early settlers of the area beginning in 1694.

Greenbelt2012.wordpress.com is a blog that opens up one's curiosity to find these spots and seek answers to the big questions of what stories are waiting to be discovered. SagittariUSDolly.wordpress.com is another interesting site. These sources fill in a few gaps about some of the people who were here long ago.

We keep history alive by sharing old stories. This opportunity has the potential for all that and more. Stay tuned.

Soccer Team Will Build On Last Year's Success

by Patrick Gleason

After a loss in last season's state quarterfinals, the Eleanor Roosevelt High School girls soccer team is eager to build on their 13-2-1 history. Despite graduating three defensive starters – Victoria Obisesan, Kaia Booker and Angel Ngwane – the Raiders return a strong nine-member senior class including midfielders Jada Savage and Sadie Swart, who respectively tallied 25 and 14 goals last season. Junior Autumn Freeman helps them anchor the Raider midfield, though Swart won't be able to return to action until September 19 as she continues to recover from a torn ACL suffered after last season's conclusion.

In addition to the strong returning core, the Raiders have added a trio of new players who offer an impressive array of speed and skill. Freshman Emery Gregory will help solidify the backline, joining veteran Esther Obisesan at centerback, while sophomore Gabrielle Johnson has infused the Roosevelt midfield with another attacking option on a team with many threats. Senior Alena Beckmann may employ her lethal speed from fullback or wing, while seniors Alyssa Casey and Gabriella Martinez will also contribute to the Raider offense. Senior transfer Hariette Ngwatum, who played for state finalist Montgomery Blair last year, will be yet another option for the Raider offensive, while Leia Barton, Claire Alolga and Bayleigh Galie will complete the defensive rotation in front of senior keeper Nikki Lilja.

Junior Varsity

The junior varsity squad also expects a successful season with an array of offensive options including sophomores Treasure Wogu, Julia Visnic, Nora Marx, Naomi Petralia, Jocelyn Lopez Tirado and Alima Kargbo. Freshman Morgan Parks adds dangerous speed to the attack while Zeala Tantoh and Adama Kargbo will guide the Raider defense from goal. Roosevelt concludes its preseason with scrimmages against Elizabeth Seton and Sherwood this week prior to the long Labor Day weekend.

Senior Arianna Casalini, right, has helped guide the Raiders in the preseason in preparation for their September 9 home opener against Bladensburg.
